

In Other Words

Laying the right foundation for the beginning world language student

By Steve Nesbitt, author of The ULAT program

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Chapter 1: Joy from the Ashes - the dynamic potential inherent in language learning vs. students' classroom disenchantment and foundational principles for working with beginning language students

Chapter 2: The ULAT - background to the creation of study materials that respect the natural language acquisition sequence

Chapter 3: Three-Step Speech - contrasting the thought process of native and non-native speakers

Chapter 4: Undoing the Damage Done - considering the damage done to the beginning language learner by premature exposure to the written language

Chapter 5: Linguistic Reflexes - enabling spontaneous speech in beginning language students

Chapter 6: The Teacher, the Time and the Task - the language teacher's most important distinctive, the student's most important year of language study and the language instructor's most important task

Chapter 7: Let 'Em Talk - the primacy of oral interaction

Chapter 8: You Can't Steer a Car Unless It's Moving - refining students' speech while still building their confidence and desire to communicate

Chapter 9: Classroom Layout - principles for creating an environment that facilitates intensive oral interaction

Chapter 10: Accountability - holding students accountable for their use of class time and for the degree of their oral participation

Chapter 11: The Oral Participation Evaluation Spreadsheet - an objective tool for recording and evaluating oral participation

Chapter 12: Saying It With Your Hands – the use of gesturing and kinesthetic representations of structure

Chapter 13: Measuring and Evaluating Oral Presentations – learning the Speech Transcription and Evaluation Method

Chapter 14: Oral Activities and Topics to Promote Oral Expression – a list of topics and techniques for eliciting oral participation

Chapter 15: The Four Pillars – four emphases that a world language program needs to have to maintain student enthusiasm

Chapter 16: Lesson Planning – how to plan a week of ULAT lessons

Chapter 17: Environment – five elements that comprise an effective learning environment

Chapter 18: Conclusion